Wingman Day

18th Wing focuses on Airmen taking care of Airmen

By Staff Sgt. Jason Lake
18th Wing Public Affairs

Shoguns of the 18th Wing took time to reflect on the importance of taking care of their wingmen during the second annual Wingman Day Nov. 18.

Wing leadership started the day by talking to commanders and front-line supervisors about their roles as leaders and wingmen in the Air Force and how they can help those who might be contending with serious issues in their lives.

This was followed by a Kadena-focused review of issues, such as domestic violence, substance abuse, sexual assault and suicide. Support programs available to help alleviate stress and help fellow wingmen were addressed, including the one-stop phone number for assistance at Kadena—634-HELP.

In the afternoon, Airmen participated in teambuilding activities such as softball and relay races.

"Today we remind ourselves that every day is Wingman Day," Brig. Gen.

Air Force/Staff Sgt. Chyrece Campbell

Brig. Gen. Jan-Marc Jouas, 18th Wing commander, addresses Kadena Airmen and civilians prior to Wingman Day relay races Nov. 18.

Jan-Marc Jouas, 18th Wing commander, told all commanders and senior NCOs during a briefing at the Keystone Theater. "And the message is that our 'culture of Airmen' begins with all of us making a commitment to our wingmen."

Chief Master Sgt. Clinton Camac, 18th Wing command chief, urged supervisors to take a proactive role with junior Airmen, both on and off duty.

"You should know the people who work for you," he explained. "Even after they leave the workplace and go home, you should know what kind of environment they are in."

Supervisors must recognize stress indicators in their Airmen, said Chief Camac, and be ready to provide relief through both personal leadership and familiarity with the variety of available base counseling services.

"Know who and where to turn to for help when it's needed," said the chief.

During two follow-on commander's calls with all wing staff sergeants and technical sergeants, General Jouas addressed the importance that first line supervisors have as leaders and wingmen.

"This is where the mission of the Air Force takes place, at our airman and NCO level," said General Jouas, "and your role in supporting the Airmen who make that mission happen is critical."

Kadena chosen to test USFJ survey

Compiled by staff reports

Kadena members began testing Monday a U.S. Forces Japan survey designed to measure local perceptions of host-nation relationships. After evaluating responses from Kadena, USFJ officials may expand the survey USFJ wide.

The climate assessment survey, which consists of nearly 40 questions, covers quality of life and political issues specific to living in Japan.

"The survey is designed to gauge your perceptions of local relations during your assignment here in Japan," explained Lt. Gen. Bruce Wright, USFJ commander.

"The data will be used to help pave the road ahead in our efforts to continuously improve local relations."

Lt. Col. John Bird, USFJ executive officer to the commander, said the survey should take approximately 10 minutes to complete.

"We'd like to gather as much data as possible," he said. "The survey will be open through the month of December, and then we'll step back and evaluate the results."

Servicemembers, Department of Defense civilians, family members and military retirees can complete the survey online at: <https://info.usfj.mil/lists/climate/c20survey/c20/c202005/intro.htm>.

Targeting a career

Michael Vining, 18th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, on how to aim an M-9 pistol during a training session with the unit Monday. More than 20 Kadena High School Air Force JROTC cadets participated in hands-on career training, including wall climbing, rappelling, and communications equipment and weapons operations.

We can't rest on our laurels

By Lt. Col. Bill Lewis
44th Fighter Squadron
commander

Congratulations Team Kadena on your "Excellent" Pacific Air Forces Unit Compliance Inspection rating!

This is evidence that we are a great team of warriors making a significant contribution to the world's most feared and respected air, space and cyberspace force.

As we read the report and congratulate our top performers, I think we should also reflect on the meaning of the inspection results.

They should not be viewed as a validation that we are doing our jobs perfectly and have nothing to learn.

The results do, however, provide an excellent opportunity to assess, appraise, reallocate resources and, finally, refocus our efforts to support the Air Force mission – to deliver sovereign options for the defense of the United States of America and its global interests – in air, space and cyberspace.

If you feel like relaxing because the inspection is over, think twice. You can be assured that our adversaries will never rest.

In the mid-1990s the Air Force first published its Core Values – Integrity First, Service Before Self, and Excellence in All We Do. The little blue book on Air Force Core Values that we were each issued says that the core value "Excellence in All We Do" directs us to develop a sustained passion for continuous improvement and innovation that will propel the Air Force into a long-term, upward spiral of accomplishment and performance."

In the 44th Fighter Squadron, we've attempted to establish an atmosphere where the constant pursuit of excellence prevails.

We put special emphasis on the "constant pursuit" part. We feel that we must always improve because what is "excellent" today may not be "excellent" next year, next month, or maybe even next week.

When we set individual, shop and unit goals, we choose to strive for "the best it can be done" instead of "good enough".

With the right attitude toward dedication, effort and study, we hope to create a climate where constant improvement is the norm.

We know we can (and must) always get better and learn more.

As Aristotle said, "We are what we repeatedly do. Excellence, then, is not an act, but a habit."

Our UCI inspection results prove that today we are a great team of warriors with a habit of outstanding and professional work.

We want to continue that performance in the future. The only way we can continue to be "Excellent" is to continue to improve.

Remember, if we aren't committed to the constant pursuit of excellence, then we put at risk our contribution to our nation's defense – absolute dominance in air, space and cyberspace.

Brig. Gen. Jan-Marc Jousas
18th Wing commander

The 18th Wing is very interested in ideas that can make Kadena an even better place to live, work and play. If you have a concern that you have been unable to resolve through normal chains of command, then we'll look into it. Although not required, it's better to give commanders, first sergeants or the agencies with which you have the concern the opportunity to correct the situation first. When that fails, send us an e-mail. Include your name and telephone number so someone can get back to you, and a brief summary of your concern.

Slow way out

First, let me say that I appreciate your time. I know you're a busy person, but I feel this is an issue that needs your help.

Can the mobile traffic barriers and cones placed in the outbound traffic lanes of Gates 1 and 2 be moved out of the way between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m.?

I understand the need for them during hours when traffic is minimal because they make it more difficult for someone who wants to run the gates. But during the peak exit hours, both lanes of traffic will be so full that it would be almost impossible for someone to run the gates.

I spoke with security forces more than a month ago. They told me the barriers are supposed to be moved. In practice, however, they are not. Now that Gate 3 is down to one outbound lane in the afternoon, traffic at the other gates is backing way up as well. Moving the barriers during peak times should minimize the traffic congestion during those hours.

I would probably understand the inability to move the barriers if manning was a problem, but as I'm departing the base after work, there are usually two people checking identifications. Surely one of them could take a few minutes to move the barriers.

Thank you for the opportunity to explain our gate procedures. The $6.1 million gate project was meant to increase the flow of traffic at all of our gates, while also enhancing our installation security. We are required to place barriers on inbound and outbound lanes at installation entry points, but they may be removed during peak hours if there is a sufficient volume of traffic to counter high speed entry into the installation. With this in mind the security forces will remove the barriers at the gates from 1630-1730 to allow two lanes of outbound traffic during peak hours. Once traffic flow no longer prevents high speed access to the installation, security forces will put the barriers back in place. We will monitor the results of this initiative and modify as required. Any questions can be directed to Capt. Leo Manahl, at 634-1557.

SHOGUN WARRIOR OF THE WEEK

Staff Sgt. Neil R. Villalobos

Unit: 320th Special Tactics Squadron, NCOIC, supply material control

Hometown: Rialto, Calif.

Reason for nomination: Sergeant Villalobos was named one of only four outstanding performers during the recent Air Force Special Operations Command logistics standardization evaluation team visit.

Time at Kadena: 3 years

Editor's note: Shogun Warriors are selected by unit leaders for their outstanding value to their unit and dedication to the Kadena mission. To nominate someone, send the name of your nominee to your unit commander or senior enlistment leaders.

DON'T DRINK AND DRIVE: Did you know? It doesn't take much alcohol before driving abilities are affected. Certain driving skills can be impaired by blood-alcohol concentrations as low as .02 percent. A 160-pound man will have a BAC of about 0.04 percent one hour after drinking two 12-ounce beers or two other standard drinks on an empty stomach. Although most states set the BAC limit for adults who drive after drinking at 0.08 percent, driving skills are affected at much lower levels.

KATRINA CHARITY CONCERT: Team Kadena members are invited to attend a free charity concert sponsored by the Okinawa City Junior Chamber of Commerce, benefiting the victims of Hurricane Katrina, Saturday at the Plaza House Shopping Center parking lot in Okinawa City from 3 to 9 p.m. A variety of Japanese jazz and blues bands will perform. Food tickets will be on sale for ¥1,000. Part of the proceeds from the food sales will be donated to a hurricane relief fund.

NEW CHAPEL SERVICE: A new contemporary worship service called Project 196 begins Sunday at Chapel 1. For more information, call Chaplain (Capt.) John Hurt at 634-1288. See page 6 for information about other chapel services.

SPEED LIMIT CHANGE: The speed limit on Douglas Ave. between McKennon and Schreiber Avenues (from the Kadena Housing Office to Chili's) changed from 60 to 50 kilometers per hour Tuesday.

DIRECT TO HOME APPLICATIONS: Applications for American Forces Network's free direct-to-home satellite system are available online at www.kadena.af.mil. Off-base residents must first get approval from their housing agency before applying for and installing the new system, available Dec. 3. Applications can either be e-mailed to FMO@kadena.af.mil, or dropped off at the Department of Defense Family Housing customer service desk in Building 217.

SMSGT PROMOTION TESTING: Testing for E-8 will be held Dec. 5-16 in Bldg. 59, Room 113. Testing begins promptly at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Late arrivals will not be admitted. Those testing must be in uniform and have their military identification card. Contact unit command support staff sections for individual test dates and times.

TESTING: Can't test during normal duty hours? The Kadena Education Center will soon offer late testing for college-level equivalent examinations, professional military education and other standardized tests. The first session is scheduled for Dec. 8 at 5 p.m. Call 634-1500 to schedule an appointment.

SPOUSE ORIENTATION: The Kadena Family Support Center sponsors the Heartlink Air Force Spouses Orientation Dec. 13 at the Schilling Community Center from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Heartlink is designed to introduce Tech. Sgt. Beryl Alexander, 18th Medical Operations Squadron technician, gives Staff Sgt. Moses Palaruan from the 18th Wing Judge Advocate Office a flu shot at the 18th Wing Headquarters Nov. 16. On that same day, approximately 20 teams from the 18th Medical Group conducted a mass influenza vaccination campaign for Kadena Airmen. Airmen who missed the opportunity may receive their vaccination by visiting the 18th MDG immunizations clinic Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Air Force spouses to valuable tools for use in successfully adapting to the military lifestyle. Catered breakfast and lunch will be provided, along with free childcare, door prizes, and a spouses coin. Call 634-3366 to sign up.

HOLIDAY MAILING INFO: Below are the holiday mailing deadlines:

- Priority mail, Saturday
- First class letters and cards, Dec. 3
- Express mail, Dec. 14

BLOOD DRIVE: The 18th Medical Group sponsors two blood drives in Building 626, 3rd floor, Dec. 15, from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Dec. 16, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Walk-ins are welcome and group appointments are also available. Call Capt. Townsend-Atkins at 630-4504 for more information.

FLYING TRAINING DEADLINES: A selection board for navigator training convenes Jan. 24-27. Airmen interested in applying must do so by Jan. 10. Application deadlines for pilot and air battle manager jobs are Wednesday. Applicants must meet requirements in Air Force Instruction 36-2205, Applying for Flying Training, Air Battle Manager, and Astronaut Programs. Call the military personnel flight at 632-8881 for more information.

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY: Use of reflective material—belt, vest or highly reflective clothing—is required on the upper body from sunset to sunrise or during conditions of reduced visibility when skateboarding, bicycling or running. The new Air Force physical fitness uniform meets this requirement.

TUITION ASSISTANCE: Students applying for tuition assistance may do so online via the Air Force Virtual Education Web site. Log on through the Air Force Portal and follow the "apply for TA" link. Once the request is approved, it will be e-mailed back to the applicant. Online TA is now available Air Force-wide and is mandatory for officers. Visit <https://www.my.af.mil/afveprod/> to apply.

BASE BEAUTIFICATION: Team Kadena members can help keep Kadena beautiful by:

- Placing bulk trash outside no earlier than the night before pickup
- Picking up trash around the neighborhood
- Separating and recycling trash
- Keeping yards cut and trimmed
- Reporting illegal dumping
- Following proper disposal procedures

SHOGUN ONLINE: The Kadena Shogun is available online at www.kadena.af.mil. If the current issues do not load automatically, click the "refresh" button on the Web browser to get the most current page.

ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP: Turn off kitchen, bath and other exhaust fans within 20 minutes after cooking or bathing.

The Okinawa Perspective

The following is a synopsis of articles that appeared recently in Japanese newspapers.

□ President George W. Bush stressed the importance of the U.S.-Japan alliance Nov. 16, calling it the bedrock for promoting freedom in Asia and pursuing global economic and security interests. Speaking in Kyoto, the president highlighted Japan's increasing regional and global contributions, while outlining U.S. views on democratic processes and economic reforms in Asia. "A free Japan has helped transform the lives of others in the region," President Bush said during a speech. "And the alliance that you have with the United States is the pillar of stability and security for the region—and a source of confidence in Asia's future."

□ The Okinawa City Assembly conducted an emergency meeting Monday to adopt a protest resolution against the number of Kadena F-15 incidents that have occurred this year, including an oil leak Oct. 19 and a damaged horizontal stabilizer Nov. 1. The resolution calls for the permanent withdrawal of all Kadena F-15s.

□ Kadena Air Base firefighters were asked to assist Japanese firefighters after a fire broke out in the Miyagi district of Chatan Town Nov. 19. The fire, which burned a 200-yard area with more than 200 tires, was extinguished with no injuries reported.

□ Japan will require that travelers from bird flu affected areas have their shoes disinfected when arriving at four national airports starting Tuesday, the Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry said Monday. The requirement applies to travelers arriving at Narita, Chubu, Kansai and Fukuoka airports from China, Russia, Mongolia, Indonesia, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Thailand, Kazakhstan, Turkey and Romania.

Only three weeks remain for this year's Combined Federal Campaign. This year, participants have the option to donate to hurricane relief efforts listed at www.cfcoverseas.org/katrinarelieff/index.php. Contact your unit CFC representative for more details.

"We can take great great pride in the many accomplishments of this wing and all of team Kadena, but there are areas in which we can do much better," General Jouas said as he addressed past Kadena statistics for spouse and child abuse, and alcohol related incidents.

General Jouas told the NCOs that the high numbers of DUIs and numerous cases of alcohol-related misconduct over the course of a year led to implementation of the liberty card program. DUIs have tapered off significantly since the blue and silver cards were issued in July.

The general also explained that the goal in changing the culture of alcohol abuse through base programs like Z-Z-1-3 aims to achieve the same culture shift in the Air Force that took place over the past three decades towards inappropriate and unprofessional behavior.

"We need everyone to regard alcohol abuse in the same light as any other unacceptable conduct," said the general. "It's not 'cool' to get drunk, and it's dangerous to binge drink."

Afternoon activities focused on teamwork and stress relief through two softball match ups, plus relay races that used items such as chemical boots and blindfolds to handicap runners.

In softball, first sergeants walloped the squadron commanders' team with a score of 27 to 11. The Eagles—base colonels and the wing commander—fared much better against Kadena's Chiefs, but the Chiefs nudged ahead with a score of 21 to 19 in extra innings.
